

July 16, 2014

Your mother always told you to wash your hands (among other things) and this was the night where all that training paid off. It was sandwich night at the old K of C hall and about 30 of us were slapping on the cheese and meat with one hand and picking little blue dots off the bread with the other (my dad always told me as a kid that eating a little blue mold would build character, but I never saw him do it.). The N.O.A.H. Bag Lunch project is a popular event with our Club that Jerry Assenmacher bulldogs through every six months. Not to say we don't like the project, it's one of the best things we do each year, but it takes a lot of prep work buying all the food and supplies and it always seems like Jerry does most of the work and gets very little credit.

Thanks to the Melvindale Kiwanis Club for sending over a crew of about five to help make the lunches.

It was good to see Damon Marxer in town. He came all the way from Boulder Colorado with his wife Colleen and his two young boys to lend a hand on this project. Colleen wouldn't let the boys help with the sandwich making for fear of some poor homeless man getting a load of snot on his ham and cheese, but when I think about it, we were handing out mayonnaise packets with all the sandwiches and snots not that much different. Anyhow, most of us were scratching our asses with those latex gloves while we were making the sandwiches and I know that can't be very sanitary.

Congratulations to Adrienne who was a guest host on KiwaniTalk last Thursday. She had the head chef and the pastry chef from Joes Produce on the show (when did vegetable stores get chefs?). She did an excellent job with a well thought out interview in a very professional manner. In fact, except for a short period where she had a big honking bugger hanging out of her left nostril everything went smooth as silk.

Upcoming Events:

July 23rd – Professor Igor Shallenburger discusses his theory that space aliens control our sex life. (Actually, this would explain a whole lot of the stories on Fox News).

Committee meetings to follow the regular meeting.

July 30th – This is my wife's birthday and I would like to give her the opportunity to explain her theory that all the troubles in the world can be solved by spending a couple hours shopping on QVC. Board of Directors meeting to follow the regular meeting.

Most folks are about as happy as they make their minds up to be.

Love & Kisses & probably sleeping on the couch
Babydoll